

A GUIDE, JUST FOR YOU

Winslow

Getting set up and finding your way around

Hi Aleks! Winslow is a small app Qinshuo built for managing procrastination — a task board, a focus timer, and a place to track how your day went. This page covers two things: getting in, and what to do once you're there. Nothing here requires any technical background.

Part One — Getting In

Part Two — Using Winslow

PART ONE

Getting In

Five steps, and only the first two are one-time setup. After that, it's just opening a bookmark.

Install Tailscale

Winslow isn't a public website — it only works over a private connection called Tailscale. Go to tailscale.com/download, get the Windows version, and run the installer.

When it asks you to sign in, use whichever account is easiest — Google, Microsoft, or email all work. Just remember which one you picked.

Accept Qinshuo's invite

Qinshuo shares access to the Winslow computer with you directly — you'll get an email with an invite link. Open it, and click Accept.

Make sure Tailscale is running afterward — look for its icon near the clock, bottom-right of your screen.

3 Open Winslow

With Tailscale running, open your browser and go to:

<https://winslow-vps.tail59b502.ts.net>

Bookmark this, or drag the star in your address bar — you shouldn't need to type it again.

4 Log in

Username: Aleks — password: whatever you and Qinshuo set together.
Click Sign in.

5 Set your own password

Once you're in, click Change password in the top-right corner. After that, only you know it — not even Qinshuo.

Forgot your password? Message Qinshuo — he'll reset it to a temporary one and send it your way. Log in with that, then come straight back here and set your own again.

PART TWO

Using Winslow

Four pages, reachable from the bar at the top: Tasks, Projects, Focus, and Evaluation.

TASKS — THE MAIN PAGE

Your task board

Two columns: Today (what you're working on now) and Task Pool (everything else). Click + Add task to create one; click a task's name to add notes, tags, or link it to a project.

Each task sits in one of four buckets, by effort and impact:

Quick Wins

low effort, high impact

Major Projects

high effort, high impact

Thankless Tasks

high effort, low impact

Fill-ins

low effort, low impact

A standup box sits above the board — ask it a question, or leave it blank and click Generate for an encouraging note about your day.

PROJECTS

Anything bigger than one task

Track its own status and notes, with every linked task laid out as a timeline. Click + New project to start one.

FOCUS

A focus timer

- Name what you're working on (optional), pick the minutes, click Start.
- Pause / Resume if you're interrupted, or Stop to end early.
- You'll get a notification when a session finishes, even with the tab closed, once you've said yes to notifications the first time.

EVALUATION

How the day went

- Log your mood any time, one tap, on a 1–5 scale.
- Click Generate today's evaluation for a short summary.
- A weekly retro sits below it, for the bigger picture.

A 7-day chart of your focused minutes sits underneath.

IF SOMETHING'S NOT WORKING

Troubleshooting

Can't reach the page at all

Check that Tailscale is running (the icon near your clock) and that you're signed into it.

"Incorrect username or password"

Double-check the username is exactly Aleks — capital A — and that Caps Lock isn't on. Still stuck? Message Qinshuo.

Nothing happens after clicking Sign in Refresh the page once, then try logging in again.

This is a small, personal app Qinshuo built and maintains himself — not a company product. If anything looks broken or confusing, he's the one to ask.
